You can enjoy the plants in their best season.

At the Toyama Prefectural Botanical Garden, there are about 6,600 kinds of plants. The garden features not only plants from Japan but also plants from many other countries. You might even find plants from your own country or from your friends' countries.

The photo shows the Santa Cruz water lily. It is a plant from South America. In summer, its leaves grow to about 1.5 meters in diameter.

The botanical garden holds an event where people can sit on the giant leaves!

Please take precautions against heatstroke.

Summer in Japan is very hot and humid. It can make you feel sick, and in severe cases, it can be life-threatening.

To prevent heatstroke...

- Wear cool clothing
- Use an air conditioner or a fan（even when sleeping）
- Do not go outside on very hot days
- Use a hat or an umbrella
- Drink plenty of water. Take salt as well.
